RISH INVOLVED IN TRADING IN FUTURES CONTRACTS

Effect of "Leverage" or "Gearing"

The amount of margin is small relative to the value of the Commodity Futures Contract so the transactions are 'leveraged' or 'geared'.

Commodity Futures trading, which is conducted with a relatively small amount of margin, provides the possibility of great profit or loss in comparison with the principal investment amount. But transactions in Futures carry a high degree of risk.

You should therefore completely understand the following statements before actually trading in Commodity Futures Contracts and also trade with caution while taking into account one's circumstances, financial resources, etc. If the prices move against you, you may lose a part of or the whole margin equivalent to the principal investment amount in a relatively short period of time. Moreover, the loss may exceed the original margin amount.

- I. Commodity Futures trading involves daily settlement of all positions. Every day the open positions are marked to market based on the Settlement price. If the settlement price has moved against you, you will be required to deposit the amount of loss (notional) resulting from such movement. This margin will have to be paid within a stipulated time frame, generally before commencement of trading next day.
- II. If you fail to deposit mark to market losses and additional margin by the deadline or if an outstanding debt occurs in your account, the Broker may, without any further notice to the Client, liquidate a part of, or the whole position, in order to bring the margin to the required level. In this case, you will be liable for any losses incurred due to such closeouts.
- III. Under certain market conditions, an investor may find it difficult or impossible to execute transactions. For example, this situation can occur due to factors such as illiquidity i.e. when there are insufficient bids or offers or suspension of trading due to price limit or circuit breakers etc.
- IV. In order to maintain market stability, the following steps may be adopted: changes in the margin rate, increases in the cash margin rate or others. These new measures may be applied to the existing open interests. In such conditions, you will be required to put up additional margins or reduce your positions.
- V. You must ask your Broker to provide the full details of the Commodity Futures Contracts you plan to trade i.e. the contract specifications and the associated obligations and ensure that your Broker takes no positions without your express written authorization if you deem it necessary.

Risk-reducing orders or strategies

The placing of certain orders (e.g., "stop-loss" orders, or "stop-limit" orders), which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts, may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as "spread" positions, may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions.

Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g., illiquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g., the suspension of trading in any contract or contact month because of price limits or "circuit breakers") may increase the risk of loss due to inability to liquidate/offset positions.

Deposited cash and property

You should familiarize yourself with the protections accorded to the money or other property you deposit particularly in the event of a firm insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which you may recover your money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property that has been specifically identifiable as your own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall. In case of any dispute with the Broker, the same shall be subject to arbitration as per the Regulations of the Exchange.

Commission and other charges:

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commission, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

Trading facilities

The Exchange offers electronic trading facilities, which are computer-based systems for order routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or Broker firms. Such limits may vary; you should ask the firm with which you deal for details in this respect.

This document does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects involved in trading on a Futures market. The Client should therefore study Futures trading carefully before becoming involved in it.

I hereby acknowledge that I have received and understood this risk disclosure statement.

AUTO LIQUIDATION ADDENDUM

_____ (“Account Holder”) has executed with Shajar Capital Pakistan (Pvt) Limited (“Broker”) a Commodities Futures Trading Account Opening Form (“AOF”) on _____ in connection with the purchase and sale of Commodity Future Contracts and trading in Commodities Futures, including commodities futures contracts, options on commodities, options on futures contracts and forward or leverage contracts and any similar instruments which may be purchased or sold or traded in (collectively referred to as “Commodity Contracts”), by or through the Broker for Account Holder’s account at Pakistan Mercantile Exchange Limited (“PMEX”) in accordance with the Rules and the Regulations of PMEX. All other provisions of the AOF shall remain in full force and effects.

The Broker offers the service of auto-liquidation and the Account Holder desires to accept and has requested for activating the auto Liquidation functionality and mechanism for the purpose of liquidating the open Commodity Contracts.

Detail descriptions of the auto liquidation and associated risk are appended below:

The Account Holder shall be responsible for checking and maintaining the required margin limit before taking additional positions or keeping intact the existing ones. In case a margin call so arises due to the Account Holder’s one or all pending Commodity Contract, the Broker has the right to settle, cancel or close the Account Holder’s open positions with respect to the pertinent Commodity Contracts.

In the event that a Account Holders account margin is reduced below the threshold limit as defined by the Broker in writing to the customer then the Auto Liquidation system will auto-liquidate all of the open positions in the account without prior notice to Account Holder, in accordance with the agreement, understanding and willingness shown herein by the Account Holder for activating Auto-Liquidation facility.

Account holder acknowledges and agrees to his account being auto liquidated by the system as per defined mechanism market rates available to the system. If positions are unable to be offset due to market conditions, the Account Holder shall still remain liable for his positions and market risk in his account. Provided however, the Broker does not guarantee or assure that the open position would stand liquidated since auto-liquidation Mechanism is subject to reasons and factors beyond the reasonable control of the Broker. Further, the Account Holder is responsible to pay any debit balance that may result from his account being auto liquidated, and shall not question or challenge the auto-liquidation due to any reasons.

It is the Broker’s sole discretion to review and alter the threshold margin limit for the Account Holder from time to time, depending upon circumstances and market conditions. Any change in the minimum margin requirement shall be communicated to the Account Holder for its knowledge and compliance thereto.

Risk Factors Associated with Auto Liquidation.

Broker can liquidate an account without prior notice to the Account Holder. this is especially the case in auto liquidation. There are several risk factors associated with auto liquidation, which the Account Holder hereby accepts. For instance, an account could be automatically liquidated if the Broker has received wrong data from PMEX, or if there is a key punch error in recording the data. Broker is not responsible for wrong data it receives from PMEX or the market maker, not is the Broker responsible for late, lost, misdirected, misdelivered, incomplete, illegible or unintelligible order, unavailable network connections, failed, incomplete, garbled or delayed computer transmissions, key punch error, online failure or other technical malfunctions or disturbances. The Broker will also not be responsible if the positions cannot be squared up to Auto Liquidation Mechanism due to circumstances beyond its control, or for any miscalculation resulting in the liquidation, typically arising as a result of lags from the PMEX and delays in execution. The Broker shall also not be responsible for any liquidations done in case the Account Holders has a margin call and he has deposited funds in the Broker’s account but his ledger is not updated timely for any reason whatsoever, as it is the Account Holder’s responsibility to timely deposit funds into the Broker’s account. If the account value changes overnight, the account may be auto liquidated upon the opening of the market. Market volatility could cause an account to be auto-liquidated on short or even without any notice to the Account Holder. All other risk associated with trading, is present even though Broker may exercise its rights to auto-liquidate.

This Auto Liquidation Addendum shall be supplemental to and not in derogation of the terms and conditions contained in the AOF, which shall continue to remain in full force and effect amended as above.

The undersigned agrees, acknowledges, and understands the foregoing and agrees to be bound by the terms of this Addendum.
